University of Manitoba
Food Science Department
Foods and Nutrition Department

The University of Manitoba has two departments involved with foods. The goals of both departments are to train students for employment in areas of food product development, consumer acceptability and quality assessment. The Food Science Department is involved with the technology of processing agricultural raw materials and also with aspects of food safety. The Foods and Nutrition Department examines the nutritional and quality characteristics of food. Consumer preferences, attitudes and consumption of foods are also considered.

Both departments offer a wide variety of technical skills to complement food processing and sensory testing facilities. They can assist companies in preparing test quantities of new products for market studies. They can also provide sensory and instrumental testing of products. The departments are most willing to serve as a resource for provincial food companies, with activities designed to complement those of the National Agri-Food Technology Centre.

R & D Service in Food Irradiation

Processing of specific food items by irradiation to improve and assure hygienic quality offers some unique technical advantages. This technology is used commercially in several countries around the world, and in a number of others it is rapidly approaching commercial application. Food irradiation is endorsed by several United Nations' agencies as a means of improving the microbiological safety, and reducing spoilage losses of appropriate categories of foods.

The Food and Agriculture section in the Radiation Applications Research Branch of AECL Research, Whiteshell Laboratories at Pinawa is engaged in research and development work on this process. Our programs and capabilities span the range from underlying research to development of specific products for testing and irradiation of sufficient product for test marketing. We work with a variety of Government Agencies and private corporations and are willing to enter into joint ventures of various kinds.

National Agri-Food Technology Centre
An Economic Innovation and Technology Council Operation

The National Agri-Food Technology Centre (NAFTC) provides technical assistance and consulting services to existing food industries. It also stimulates the creation of new food processing opportunities in Canada.

NAFTC's food technology operation is funded by fees charged for services, and by the Government of Manitoba. NAFTC staff work closely with researchers at the University of Manitoba and other facilities to assure the full technical resources of the province are available to clients.

NAFTC provides assistance to industry in the areas of: food products development; food engineering and process development; food packaging; food evaluation and testing; and food information and advisory services. For small and medium-sized firms, these services represent a cost-efficient opportunity to utilize sophisticated technical and informational resources. Larger firms also use NAFTC's food technology services to complement their own in-house testing facilities and to verify their own test results.

Specific areas of expertise include: recipe development; sensory evaluation; consumer acceptance studies; shelf-life studies; nutritional evaluation; development of quality control and sanitation programs; pesticide residue detection; custom processing; and co-packing.

To support product/process development services, NAFTC's 2,000 square-metre facility has laboratories which provide chemical and microbiological analyses of raw materials and finished products. A fully-operational pilot plant also gives companies the unique opportunity to go into pilot-scale production for test marketing, without the required capital investment.

From the inception of a contract research project to completion, the client works one-on-one with a designated project leader. Budgets and other project parameters (time allocation, methodology, reporting procedure, deliverables) are clearly outlined to the client before the project is initiated. NAFTC staff are well-positioned to assist clients in obtaining financial assistance to help defray project costs for eligible projects.

All aspects of the client-consultant relationship are held in strict confidence.

Facts About Manitoba Agriculture

Land and Use

Manitoba extends 1,225 kilometers (761 miles), from the U.S. border to the Northwest Territories. Its total area is 67.6 million hectares (167 million acres).

The land areas is 54.8 million hectares (135.5 million acres), 27 percent of which has some agricultural potential.

Fifty per cent of land with agricultural potential is used for agriculture.

In 1991, 4.8 million hectares (11.8 million acres) were seeded to crops, .3 million hectares (.7 million acres) were summerfallowed and over .3 million hectares (.8 million acres) were improved pasture lands. Almost 1.8 million hectares (4.3 million acres) were unimproved lands used for pasture and hay.

Farm Numbers

In 1991, Manitoba had 25,706 farms. The average farm size was 301 hectares (743 acres).

Approximately 79,600 Manitobans live on farms. In 1981, one Manitoban in 10 lived on a farm. However, in 1991 the ratio changed to one in 14.

Farm Income

Realized net farm income in 1991 was $195 million.

Manitoba farmers spent proportionally more money in 1991 than in 1990 on fuel, pesticides, machinery repairs and stabilization and insurance premiums, and less on fertilizer, interest charges, feed and miscellaneous costs.

Farm cash receipts from crops decreased by 2 percent between 1990 and 1991, while the receipts from livestock decreased by 3 percent.

Provincial Economy and Agriculture

Agriculture's indirect and direct contribution to the economy of the province was equal to 9.6 percent of the gross domestic product in 1991.

In 1991, 41,000 persons were directly employed in Manitoba agriculture. In addition, 22,700 persons were employed in other areas of the provincial economy as a direct result of the agricultural industry, bringing total employment generated by agriculture to 12.9 percent of Manitoba's labour force in 1991. This means that about one job in eight was the result of agricultural production. In addition to stimulating local employment, agriculture in Manitoba is directly responsible for thousands of jobs in other parts of Canada.
